THE THEATRES.

First-Class Plays at Both the Colonial and Grand Next Week.

The ideals will close their engagement at the Grand Opera House with "On the Frontier," tonight. The company has had a very successful business here, and will be welcomed whenever it returns. The receipts of the week have exceeded all past records at the Grand.

For the first half of next week, "The Missouri Girl" will be at the Grand, for night and daily matinee performances. "The Missouri Girl" produces genuine, hearty laughter. In connection with a strong and interesting plot, it contains judicious situations and the company presenting the play is fully capable of extracting this fun, and dealing it out to the public in a most satisfactory manner. Sadie Raymond retains her role of Daisy, and is now a "fine lady." Gerald Hawley who proposes to her, after a brief acquaintance is rejected and he gives her the first news of Old Arkansas's arrest, and tells her it is only by marrying him that she can save her guardian's life, for Hawley says the old man cannot possibly be convicted without his identifying him. She consents at length providing that Hawley brings her a letter from Arkansas that she may be satisfied that it is his wish.

The fourth act is given over to Hawley's futile attempt to get such a letter from Arkansas. In his rage he sets a mob on the jail. In the meantime Jerry, a weak minded backwoodsman, has followed clue after clue and put two and two together with the result that at the last moment Arkansas is been presented here that left so favorable an impression upon theatre-goers, as did "York State Folks," and its return will be hailed with pleasure.

"York State Folks" is a picture of life in a remote village—the "David Harum" country where Mr. Sidman was born. It is an idyllic picture he has painted with skill. There is plenty of comedy and plain undiluted simplicity in the painting, but the play has also a serious side. One wonders why he became so thoroughly interested in the very ordinary and very natural troubles growing out of a little disagreement between two old men. The sale of seats opens Monday morning.

Joseph Arthur's scenic melodrama, "Lost River," ran for six months in New York and was kindly treated by the critics as well as by the public. The S. H. O. sign was continually in evidence. It was Mr. Arthur who put a fire engine in working order on the stage in "The Still Alarm," and gave a buzz saw a place in the same play. The excitement caused by these effects and the episodes leading to their employment rendered a strong sedative necessary to people afflicted with "nerves." The scene of his latest play is rural Indiana. Its story recites the adventures of Robert Blessing, a young contractor, building an aqueduct over Lost River, who falls in love with a little country girl and endeavors to discover the mystery of her parentage. Three race horses, three bicycles, a drove of sheep, a quartet of hoboes, a country orchestra and 30 experienced actors and actresses are employed in "Lost River." It will appear at the Colonial Thursday evening of next week. The sale of seats opens Tuesday.

"Our New Minister," which was one of the hits in its special line last season, and which comes to the Colonial theatre on Friday, Oct. 10, is a novelty and a delight. It is novel, because it is out of the beaten track, for which we should give much thanks; it is a delight because it is a page of fresh, bubbling human nature. It exalts virtue and courage, teaches good manners, shows the value of unselfish living, and presents a group of recognizable human beings doing natural things in a natural environment. The drift of it is tender and humanizing, the atmosphere of it is healthfully exhilarating. A mere recital of the story would convey little idea of the charm there is in the play, it is full of surprises, apt comedy, touching sentiment, expressive situations and a general round-up in which everybody rejoices. The sale of seats opens next Wednesday.

"The Man Who Dared" and "A Sister's Love" are among the good attractions booked for an early appearance at the Grand.

"York State Folks," the newest pastoral play, and one which has become the greatest success among rural dramas, comes to the Colonial theatre next Wednesday, matinee and evening. "York State Folks" visited Akron last season, and that visit was one remembered by all who had the good fortune to witness the play and those who missed it. Seldom has a play freed, and Hawley placed in his cell. So the mob deals out punishment to the real villain after all. This interesting play will be at the Grand Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week.

Those who use Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills as a nerve and general tonic—as a restorer—as a medicine to give renewed strength—energy and vigor never fail to sound their praise to others.

Mr. Chas. Corwin, of 112 Wabash st., Akron, O., says: "Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills is a fine spring tonic. While not sick I felt I lacked energy and ambition—was not up to the general standard of health at all. The Nerve Pills were suggested to me and I got a box and am pleased to say they acted finely and rapidly. I feel right well again in every particular and can conscientiously recommend the medicine to others who feel depressed without any apparent cause."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are sold at 50 cents a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D. are on every package.

HE HAD NO NAME

But He Closed a Careless Driver's Eye Like a Ruhlin.

There was an exciting scene on Furnace st., about 1 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, during which women screamed, children cried, and general confusion reigned.

And the stream of people making their way to the fair grounds was a young man, dressed in the height of fashion, and wheeling a perambulator in which were a pair of twins. The babes were as dainty and pretty as cherubs, and the young father was plainly as proud as a peacock.

A buggy containing two men came whirling around the bend under the overhead railroad bridge. The horse was going at a mad pace, sweeping through the crowd with reckless abandon. People scurried to right and left to get out of the way, when suddenly a suppressed groan went up from the crowd, for it seemed as though the perambulator containing the babies was almost upon it.

Miraculously, however, the horse was turned from its course, and when the people looked again, the babies were as spry and as before, and looking with wondering eyes at the father, the fashion plate neatness of whose costume had not been marred, though he had just finished hauling the driver from the carriage and administering the severest kind of corporal punishment. The father was a little fellow, being about five and a half feet in height, and weighing about 150 pounds, while the driver was nearly twice his size. The careless driver was far from looking neat, as his clothes were covered with mud, and the blood was streaming from an ugly cut above the left eye, which was closed.

"I'll teach you to look where you're going," said the father, as he turned his attention to his babies.

When a reporter approached with the query, "What is your name?" the young man had just opened his mouth to respond when he was immediately surrounded by a bevy of women, his wife, his mother-in-law, and his mother. "You don't know your name," cried they excitedly. "Remember now, you don't know your name; no, you don't." And the reporter had to accept the remarkable statement: "I have no name."

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

Digests what you Eat

When the stomach is diseased all the other organs suffer, hence fatal diseases of the heart, liver, lungs and kidneys are often the result of improper digestion. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure contains all the natural digestive fluids and by digesting what you eat, it cures the indigestion without aid from the stomach, allowing it to rest and regain its healthy condition and permitting you to eat all the good food you want.

"My rest is often disturbed at night by irregular heart action which I believe is on account of my stomach being overloaded with undigested food. I keep a bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure nearby and a small dose always gives me instant relief." Ed. Thomas, Leitchfield, Ky.
